

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We were persuaded to undertake this project on the initiation of UNESCO MOST Secretariat (Urban Development Section). We enjoyed financial and logistic support offered by the Hungarian National Committee for UNESCO, the MTA/VITA Foundation, the city governments of Budapest and Székesfehérvár, and Kodolányi University College in Székesfehérvár. It was the Centre for Regional Studies, Hungarian Academy of Sciences (Pécs) that made the publication possible.

Special credit is due to Ms. Maria Borgos, executive director of the MTA/VITA Foundation, who worked as the general manager of the project, and to Dr. Krisztina Keresztély, who served as the scientific secretary of the project and who authored the concept paper for the conference.

Finally, we thank Dorottya Rédei for language revision, Ilona Csapó for the careful preparation of the text for publication and Dr. Zoltán Gál, the series editor of the Discussion Papers published by the Centre for Regional Studies, who helped us throughout the genesis of this book.
